

Menace II Society

My first offense...being born black
My second offense...being born a male
Being a black man in America isn't easy

The hunt is on and we're the prey, I guess that's why we're the ones who get stalked and killed everyday

I'm America's worst nightmare: young, black, educated, and I don't give a fuck. I guess that makes me a menace to society, but I see the rain pourin down

This is why I frown when I hear the sound of the ignorance
There is no one color for the ignorant that's why they kill us and we kill each other and red-neck white folk praise Donald Trump when he shouts, "Get rid of the immigrants"

Damn I can't stand it Pops taught me early, when you get into the real world they gon treat you like you a natural born bandit

Damn I can't stand it
This is America; we supposed to be the most advanced if

That's the case why do it seem like only one race is advancing while we are just bullshittin doing cool latest dances

I can see clearly now the rain is gone

I am socially classified as an African-American
But how can I be both slave and slave master?
Doesn't seem that sociable
I swear I'm more approachable
Than you think I am

See my education has done me justice and we aren't getting enough justice these days
Just justifications, in this so-called "free land"
So I stand, here

Today and I say I don't want you to think of me as a menace to society just want you to get to know me for me

*Written by Jaylen Cromwell
Brooks School*